Daniel N. Bass is the chief financial officer of Fortress Investment Group LLC, a publicly traded asset management firm based in New York City. Bass is also a member of the firm’s Management and Operating committees. In his capacity as CFO, Bass oversees the firm’s finance and accounting functions as well as the HR, IT and other corporate departments.

Prior to joining Fortress in November 2003, Bass spent 11 years at Deutsche Bank. Over the course of his career at Deutsche Bank, he held positions as managing director of DB Capital Partners and as managing director of the Global Business Area Controller of Deutsche Bank’s Corporate Investments Division. Prior to his time with Deutsche Bank, Bass was a senior associate in the international tax practice at Coopers & Lybran.

Bass and his wife, Mindy, are involved with several volunteer organizations, including the United Jewish Appeal Federation of Northern Westchester and My Sister’s Place, a shelter for victims of domestic violence.

Bass, a certified public accountant, received his B.S. and master’s in accounting from Florida State University. While attending FSU, he was the president of both his fraternity, Alpha Epsilon Pi, and Beta Alpha Psi, the accounting honorary fraternity. He and his wife reside in Chappaqua, N.Y., with their four children.
